

SEVENSEAS Marine Conservation and Travel Magazine: University Student Ocean Ambassador Program

About SEVENSEAS

SEVENSEAS magazine, a project of the Ocean Foundation, is a free publication that promotes both marine conservation and eco-tourism. Through articles and photography, people of all ages and backgrounds can enjoy and be inspired by the magazine every month. The goal of SEVENSEAS is to prevent the destruction of ocean ecosystems by spreading the word about marine conservation.

About the University Student Ocean Ambassador Program

Students chosen to be ocean ambassadors will be volunteers. There will be one ambassador per university. Each month, ambassadors will be responsible for hosting an ocean-themed event on campus, such as a documentary screening or a sustainable seafood potluck. The goal of these events is to spread the word about ocean conservation and travel around college campuses. Additionally, ambassadors should plan to discuss the content of SEVENSEAS with their peers each month. This can be in tandem with the monthly events or could be a separate engagement.

Ambassadors are to encourage students to subscribe to SEVENSEAS for free and to follow us on social media. We are only as strong as our networks!

How to Apply:

Send resume and completed application form to hello@sevenseastravelmagazine.com by December 21st, 2016.

Ambassadors will serve for the entire spring 2017 semester, with the potential to continue the program for the fall 2018 semester if they are still in school.
